

On our September 24th from 9-2:30pm, Inclusive Learning - Learning services are fortunate to be hosting Dr. Jennifer Mervyn, Registered Psychologist, for a day of learning on Trauma Informed Practice for the full day.

Learning objectives for the day will be:

- Become familiar with the scientific underpinnings of Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) & overall general principles of Trauma Informed Practice for all students
- Understand it's evidence base and value in Education & Public schools
- Learn how to engage students by using trauma informed principles in rapport building
- Understand Trauma Informed Practice with Indigenous students & communities
- Action Plan how to transform schools in the district to align with this philosophy and approach to increase student (and staff!) wellness

Facilitator:

Dr. Jennifer Mervyn was acknowledged by CAMH as one of the 150 Canadians making a difference in mental health. She is a Registered Psychologist with an extensive background in trauma and substance abuse. Jennifer is known for utilizing innovative, culturally informed, therapeutic approaches in her work. Jennifer is Métis, mother of four, and strong advocate for the Indigenous community. She consults, teaches, and trains on Trauma Informed Practice and policy nationwide.
